COMMENTS (week 3 – January 2006)

The market for tropical and off-season fruits and vegetables continues in a negative trend. Sales during the festivities have not been very good, with few exceptions in the days immediately preceding Christmas and the New Year. Subsequently the market place have been very quite until Jan 15th in practically all countries.

Avocado: small volumes from Spain and Israel and delayed deliveries from Mexico turned the market heavily undersupplied. Prices have strongly increased in both segments, largely exceeded 10,00 Euro/ctn for hass avocado (except small sizes) and reaching 7,00-9,00 Euro/ctn in the green segment (all varieties). The market is expected to remain favourable in both segments, with larger availabilities from Mexico and Spain and light supplies from Israel. Big grades (12-14-16') are lacking on the green market; season of Kenyan fuerte should start to develop in 15 days time.

Coconuts: small volumes available and market still affected by the hurricanes consequences.

Ginger: end of season for Brazil, a high number of different origins is present on the market.

Limes: demand is very low and availabilities from Mexico practically over. Quotation ranges 3.50-4.50 Euro/ctn, with slightly higher prices for fresh arrivals.

Mango: with only some Brazilian suppliers on the market, Peru and Ecuador are the most common recorded information origins. Prices stand between 3,50 – 5,00 Euro/ctn for all varieties and provenances. It has been reported that many too ripened fruits make part of the offer at present.

Pineapple: prices are low either for sweet variety (7,00 -10,00 Euro/ctn) and cayenne (7,00-9,00 Euro/ctn). Demand is very low, prices diminished further in week 4 (Euro 6,00-8,50).

Week 3 has also been characterized by weak sales activity and low demand. The weather condition might have in some cases affected the markets frequentation even though cannot be considered responsible for the market situation at present. Sales are uncertain even at very low prices.
